10 SOUND TEST
LING - MADELL - HEWITT

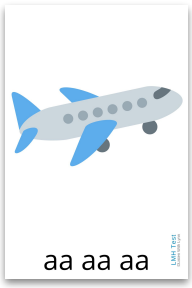

The LMH Test For Monitoring Listening
10 Sound Test
Joan Hewitt AuD FAAA, CCC-A, TOD
Jane Madell Ph.D., FAAA, CCC-A/SLP, LSLS Cert AVT

The LMH is a screening test to be used by parents and clinicians working with children with hearing loss. Hearing technology has improved significantly since the advent of the Ling 6 Sound Test (2006). Joan Hewitt and Jane Madell recommend adding four consonant sounds /n/, /h/, /z/, and /dj/ to better cover the Low, Middle, and High frequencies. The LMH Test screens the low, mid, and high frequencies to get a better idea of a child's speech perception.

The goal of the LMH Test and all speech perception measures is to determine what a child is hearing and what they are missing. The information can then be used by the audiologist to adjust technology settings to provide better access to frequency bands not being perceived. Speech perception and production need to be monitored regularly to identify consistent errors patterns and then management.

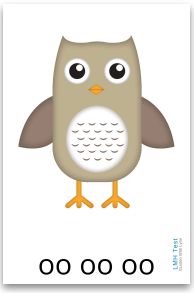

Children who are deaf and hard of hearing must have excellent access to sound or hear very well with their technology if they are going to be able to use listening to learn spoken language and develop good literacy skills.

Thank You!

I am truly grateful that you have chosen my tools and resources for helping children who are deaf and hard of hearing learn to listen and talk, which promotes their language, literacy and lifetime success.

Lynn A. Wood

About Me

I'm Lynn Wood, an Audiologist and Listening and Spoken Language Certified Auditory Verbal Therapist in private practice at the Auditory Verbal Center of Wheaton in Illinois. I have over 35 years of experience and specialize in pediatric auditory verbal therapy, post cochlear implant auditory rehabilitation for children and adults, and therapy for individuals with auditory processing needs.

Beyond my love of direct therapy, I have an affinity for resource design, practical professional development, and guiding and coaching families of children who are deaf and hard of hearing. I launched Listen With Lynn™ in 2019, to offer and share Listening and Spoken Language tools, resources, and activities for parents and professionals. I hope my years of experience and resources assist, encourage, and make your listening and spoken language journey easier.

I love to listen so let's connect!
