Ode to …?

Using Kobe Bryant’s “Dear Basketball” as inspiration, write your own ode/letter to something or someone that you love. It can be a sport, activity, pet, family member, friend, celebrity… Pretty much whatever you would like!

Here are the guidelines:

- It must start with "Dear (whatever it is)"
- It must be written in the form of a letter to whoever/whatever it is you love, using “I” and “you” (so in second person).
- You need to use at least three examples of figurative language in your writing.
- Be descriptive with your emotions and feelings about the thing you love.
- It must be at least 15 lines long.
- It does not have to rhyme, but if you want it to, you can.
- You can handwrite it or do it in the program of your choice. You can write it out simply, or you can get creative and include art.
