Race to Complete

MATERIALS NEEDED:
- One literacy game board per person (5 players, 5 game boards)
- Six-sided die
- Something to color/highlight with

Directions:
1. Place one copy of the game board somewhere everyone can see.
2. Give everyone playing a copy of the game board.
3. Have everyone choose something to color with.
4. Ask that all people playing choose one of the following: A video game they are currently playing, a book they are currently reading, a movie they recently watched, a TV series they have been binging. (Other mediums are fine as well, the item chosen must just include CHARACTERS and SETTING)
5. The youngest player will go first.
6. Gameplay then moves clockwise.

GAMEPLAY
1. The youngest player will roll the die. The player will announce what book/game/movie/show/etc. He/she is using today.
2. Once the roll is complete, the player answers the question with the corresponding number. (Ex. If the player rolls a “4”, he or she will answer the “Round 1” question across from #4 “When-What time of year/day/week is it at the beginning of what you chose?”).
3. The player answers the question that matches this criteria.
4. Gameplay moves clockwise and the next player follows the same pattern.
5. The first player to reach “Round 5” of any category wins.
