Introduction

According to the National School Climate Center, school climate refers to the quality and character of school life, and is based on students', parents', and school personnel's experience with the school. It reflects the norms, goals, values, interpersonal relationships, teaching and learning practices, and organizational structures within the school setting.

Based on a synthesis of available research and expert and stakeholder opinion, the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Safe and Healthy Students (OSHS) put forth a model for school climate measurement (Figure 1). In the proposed model, school climate consists of three primary domains, each consisting of corresponding subdomains as follows:

- ENGAGEMENT — the quality of relationships, including respect for diversity among students, staff and families; the level of school participation and involvement by families, staff, and students in school activities; and efforts by schools to connect with the larger community.
- SAFETY — the physical and emotional security of the school setting and school-related activities as perceived, experienced, and created by students, staff, families, and the community. The use and trade of illicit substances in the school setting and during school-related activities also is included in this domain.
- ENVIRONMENT — the physical and mental health supports available that promote student wellness, the physical condition of school facilities, the academic environment, and the disciplinary tone of the school—i.e., the fairness and adequacy of disciplinary procedures.

Schools have little control of the demographic characteristics of the students they serve or the broader factors in the community that impact educational outcomes. Research conducted in West Virginia suggests that by addressing a factor that is within their sphere of influence—improving school climate—schools may substantially diminish the unfavorable effects of those matters, such as poverty, over which they have little control. Accordingly, schools should focus their improvement efforts on the needs of their students and staff as they relate to school climate.

The West Virginia Board of Education enacted "Expected Behaviors in Safe and Supportive Schools" which became effective July 1, 2012. In carrying out this policy, school districts and schools should establish a process to gain school-wide input and commitment to school climate improvements from students, staff, parents and community. Although it is up to schools to decide how to gain the input, the West Virginia Department of Education has offered the West Virginia School Climate Surveys. Adapted from the California School Climate, Health, and Learning Survey suite, three interrelated surveys were available: 1) for Students; 2) for School Staff; and 3) for Parents. These surveys provide critical information about the learning and teaching environment, the health and well-being of students, and supports for parents, school staff, and students that foster learning and school success aligned with the West Virginia Standards for High Quality Schools.

A major focus of The Blueprint for Reform: The Reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), released by the U.S. Department of Education in 2010, is to ensure that schools receive the support needed to invest in models that "keep students safe, supported, and healthy both in and out of school..." The blueprint further states that "States and districts also will collect other key information about teaching and learning conditions, including information on school climate such as student, teacher and school leader attendance; disciplinary incidents; or student, parent, or school staff surveys about their school experience." The WV School Climate Surveys enable schools to collect this kind of data.

This report contains survey results from the school climate survey for high school students. The survey required approximately 20 minutes for students to complete. Participation in the survey was voluntary, and students could choose to not participate or to answer any question they did not want to answer. Further, the survey results presented were anonymous and confidential. Students were not asked to provide names or any other identifying information. Furthermore, parental informed consent procedures were used in accordance with relevant federal requirements.

In the following pages tabular results are presented showing the percentage of students responding to each question cross-tabulated by grade, school, county, and state. NOTE: County results are representative of students from only those schools in each county participating in the survey. Likewise, state results are representative of students from only those schools across the state participating in the surveys. Finally, school, county, and state results are aggregated across all grade levels of all participating students.
